Transferability of Credits

Students who attend Millennia Atlantic University and plan to transfer credits earned at MAU to another school should contact the institution to which the student seeks transfer before enrolling in order to determine if credits will be accepted. The granting of transfer credit is within the sole discretion of the receiving institution.

If a student seeks to transfer credits originating from an institution situated outside of the United States, the student must submit a course by course evaluation of his or her transcripts. This evaluation the foreign transcript must be completed by a service that is a member of the Association of International Credential Evaluators (AICE), the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO), or the National Association of Credential Evaluation Services (NACES).

It is the policy of this institution to accept transfer credits for up to 50% of the requirements for graduation from any program. To obtain a degree, however, there are a certain number of final credit hours that must be completed at Millennia Atlantic University depending on the degree sought. Please see the program information for the specific level of degree offering for further detail on this requirement. Students must submit official transcripts for work completed at another institution in order for the credit to be considered for transfer. The receipt of credit for courses is reserved for those students who have successfully completed courses at another institution that are comparable in content, quality and scope to those offered at the University. Undergraduate students seeking to transfer credits from an associate's degree awarded at another institution towards one of the University's bachelor degree programs must have completed a minimum of fifteen (15) semester credit hours or the equivalent in general education, with a minimum 2.00 CGPA. The University may, in its discretion, require that transfer credit be validated by testing demonstrating the skills and knowledge possessed by the student.
